Hi friends,

We are still with you, sharing the good reasons to travel to Cuba.

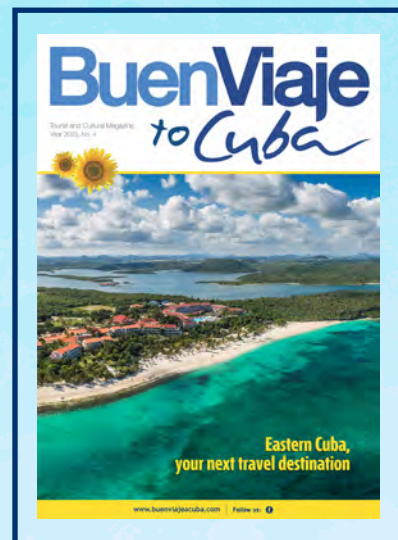

We begin this edition by dedicating our special feature to eastern Cuba, which was the region chosen by the Havanatur Group to hold MegaFam for its 45th Anniversary. We will invite you to visit places of singular beauty such as Baracoa, the city of Gibara and Cayo Saetía, with its peculiar combination of nautical and safari activities.

We will share information about emblematic Gran Caribe hotels in Havana, and about a hotel that Accor proposes to us in Jardines del Rey, the Pullman Cayo Coco. We bring news about the new brand that Blue Diamond will begin to operate in Cuba and about the services that Transtur Tourist Buses offer in the country's main destinations.

In addition, we have spaces for our regular collaborators, among them Cubasol, which offers us the Plaza America Convention Center in Varadero, and also tells us about its events in 2024.

Discover Cuba from our pages.

Eastern Cuba, your next travel destination

The recent Mega event organized by the Havanatur Group in eastern Cuba, an occasion in which more than 300 travel agents from several countries met in a successful commercial event from all points of view, inspires us to begin this edition by dedicating the Special Feature to “the most beautiful land human eyes have ever seen.”

customers. In this way, the enjoyment of the beauty, facilities and services in the eastern provinces of Cuba became an in situ training action for sellers. To this we add that they received first-hand information about the novelties for the 2023-2024 winter season, and that everyone was able to get together to enjoy the closing night, on the beach of the Brisas Guardalavaca

What Admiral Christopher Columbus said, upon arriving at the northern coast of the current province of Holguín, could be confirmed by the participants in the MegaFam that celebrated the 45th Anniversary of Havanatur. This event also had the peculiarity that it was not designed with a single program for the visits and tours, but rather the participating agencies had the opportunity to design their own route, according to the interests of each market and identifying products and experiences that they would later take to their Hotel, to celebrate with live Cuban music in a true gastronomic festival on the seashore.

But why did Havanatur choose the eastern Cuba for its Mega event, inviting us to rediscover this region of Cuba? The answer lies in nature, history and culture, but above all in the vision of the future of this Cuban tour operator.

If we talk about the natural beauties that the region makes available to travelers, we can start with its beautiful beaches, where it is possible to enjoy water sports, for example, in Guardalavaca in Holguín and Covarrubias in Las Tunas. This area of Cuban geography has countless sites for diving lovers, with seabeds of surprising beauty and the presence of shipwrecks of considerable historical value. Diving centers with all the facilities, services and very well-prepared professionals await all those who wish to delve into that submerged heritage that the region can boast of.

with their museums, galleries and theaters; and rural areas, with their country festivals and celebrations. Music is part of the days and nights of this eastern region's tourist facilities, where we find groups of various formats that cultivate son, guaracha, bolero and many other Cuban musical genres. The presence of artisans and art galleries in many of the hotels is a way to learn about Cuban artistic manifestations first-hand. The gastronomy of the region is another attraction that visitors can appreciate, with dishes made from local ingredients and recipes handed down from generation to generation.

On land there is also much to see and enjoy. Eastern Cuba is known for its mountainous areas, and for the presence of several National Parks, including the Desembarco del Granma National Park – a World Heritage Site – the Turquino National Park, the Pico Cristal National Park and the Alejandro de Humboldt National Park. Cuba's National System of Protected Areas recognizes other areas where ecotourism lovers will find the wonders of Cuban nature: the Yunque de Baracoa, the Gran Piedra, the Yumurí canyon, and the Baconao Park, with its Prehistory Valley, are just some of them.

History and culture are protagonists in trips to that region of Cuba. Let's start by saying that it has several of the first cities founded in the country: Baracoa, the primate city of Cuba, in 1512; Bayamo, in 1513 and Santiago de Cuba in 1515. The architectural wealth of the various styles that have marked these cities over the centuries is one of the attractions that visitors will find. They preserve heritage buildings that today have become the E Hotels, and which offer the comfort of modernity, personalized attention and excellent services.

And there is also the presence of culture, with the best of traditions forming part of the life of the cities,

For all these reasons, the eastern Cuba can be an excellent option when planning a trip to Cuba. A trip that can become – why not – a trip to the Caribbean region, by combining stays in the largest of the Caribbean islands and other nearby destinations, with which there are air connections. Travel agencies and tour operators have various programs you can select according to your preferences. They will organize your trip and the eastern Cuba will guarantee you the best of scenarios for a unique, unforgettable experience.

Air Europa to use biofuels on flights to Havana

An alliance signed with the Spanish Oil Company (CEPSA) will allow Air Europa to supply its planes with about 14.4 tons of sustainable aviation fuel (SAF). It will be the first time that two companies in Spain establish a regular supply of this type for a specific air route, for which the Madrid-Havana itinerary has been chosen. For one year, the first monthly flight between both cities will be made with this biofuel, produced from organic waste and used cooking oils.

“This agreement complies with the commitments assumed in terms of sustainability, one of the backbones of the airline’s 2023-2025 Strategic Plan. Likewise, by using this fuel on the route to Havana, the company makes visible its strategic role in air connectivity with America,” Jesús Nuño de la Rosa, CEO of Air Europa, explained.

As detailed on the official Air Europa blog, emissions from aircraft using SAF are reduced by up to 90% compared to conventional kerosene, and waste that would otherwise end up in landfills is used. During the period of collaboration with CEPSA, the emission of nearly 50 tons of CO₂ will be avoided, the equivalent of planting 575 trees.

Thus, Air Europa takes another step in achieving its decarbonization goals through sustainable innovation, leading the regular use of SAF by its B787 Dreamliner fleet.

In Cuba, the company operates daily flights, being the only airline that connects the Caribbean nation with Spain with such frequency. Likewise, it allows for connectivity with a large number of countries in Europe and Asia. In Havana, it has commercial offices in the Miramar Business Center, where it is possible to book flights and receive all the necessary information to plan your next trip.

We are Dreamliners.

Guardalavaca envisions change to Smart Tourist Destination

On the northern coast of Holguín, Guardalavaca beach resort is advancing on the path to becoming a Smart and Sustainable Tourist Destination. To this end, after agreement with the local delegation of the Ministry of Tourism, researchers from the University of Holguín are carrying out a project that takes into account world experiences and their adjustment to the Cuban context.

When we talk about a Smart Tourist Destination, we are faced with a new way of management, since not only the incorporation of technological advances is taken into account. There are four more main aspects that intervene in this trend along with technology: sustainability, governance, accessibility and innovation. We dedicate this page to accessibility and sustainability.

In one of the flagship hotels of this tourist destination, the Brisas Guardalavaca of the Cubanacán Group, a first diagnosis has already been carried out, with interesting results. One of the aspects studied was the degree of accessibility of the facility, which is currently of a medium level. Taking into account that, according to global experience, 20% of tourists who arrive at a destination have greater accessibility requirements, this must become a priority.

On the other hand, the project also identified the circular economy as a way to reuse resources and reduce the negative environmental impact based on sustainability. At Brisas Guardalavaca, work has been done on recycling containers, redirecting textiles that are no longer suitable for room use and other means that take products from the hotel to new industries.

The results of the diagnosis will be a starting point to unite wills in the tourism sector and its service providers, in order to achieve sustainability. Technology will also make its contribution, with the digitalization of processes and services that range from reservations, through the operation of the facilities and even the evaluation of customer satisfaction.

Guardalavaca and its tourist facilities envision the transformation into a Smart Tourist Destination (STD) for an increasingly near future, as Cuba has begun this path with the first project in Cayo Largo del Sur. Currently, the country is an observer of the STD Network of Spain, and is in the presentation phase of its candidacy to be a full member of the Ibero-American Network.

Five experiences to live the magic of Baracoa

Cuba's Baracoa is a magical place that captivates everyone who ventures to discover it. The so-called "First City" and the spaces that surround it are a true paradise of Cubaness and authenticity. We invite you to explore its charms and immerse yourself in its unique atmosphere

Located at the eastern end of the island of Cuba, Baracoa is one of those tourist destinations that you have to visit at least once in your life. This township and its surroundings impress visitors thanks to its rich history and incomparable natural beauty.

One of the main attractions of this region is its impressive natural environment, which includes areas of the Alejandro de Humboldt National Park, declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO. There, nature lovers can admire exceptional biodiversity on guided walks along trails that pass near waterfalls and crystal-clear rivers. Species of plants such as ferns, and fauna, such as snails of the genus Polymita, butterflies, harmless reptiles and amphibians, are wonders that walkers will find in their path.

Another excellent way to spend the day is to visit the Duaba agroecological farm, an example of sustainability and environmental conservation. It is a great opportunity to tour the cocoa crops and learn about the chocolate manufacturing process, from harvesting to making the final product. In addition, travelers can taste and purchase these delicacies.

For those interested in history and culture, Baracoa offers a number of fascinating sites.

Among them, Fuerte Matachín - built in the 18th century to protect the city from pirate attacks - is a must-visit place, as from there it is possible to enjoy panoramic views of the city and the sea. It functions as the Municipal Museum of Baracoa and offers exhibitions ranging from pre-Columbian times to the present day.

Beach lovers will also find near Baracoa an ideal place to relax and enjoy the sun and the sea. We are talking about Maguana Beach, about 20 kilometers from the urban area, and one of the most beautiful in the region. Here, vacationers can swim, snorkel, or simply relax under the shade of palm trees. Those looking for a more adventurous experience can explore Taco Bay and try water sports.

But one cannot talk about Baracoa without mentioning its delicious gastronomy. The city is known for its traditional dishes, with recipes that incorporate ingredients such as coconut, honey and banana. While in the city, we recommend exploring restaurants that offer these authentic flavors of local cuisine.

Baracoa, the first township founded in Cuba by the Spanish, continues to preserve that beauty that has captivated visitors from all over the world. Any time of the year is appropriate to visit it, which is why it is included in several tour programs offered by the main travel agencies in Cuba.

Gibara and its charms shine in eastern Cuba

Gibara, located about 33 kilometers from the city of Holguín in eastern Cuba, unites the preservation of heritage with its attractive geography and historical values. Such a combination makes this city an interesting destination for travelers from all over the world.

The date of its foundation is accepted as January 16, 1817, because this was the moment in which the first stone of the San Fernando Fort – current Battery of Fernando VII – was laid. Currently, fragments of the wall and the forts of this military construction, from where it is possible to enjoy charming views of the city, are conserved.

Some experts say that the name “Gibara” derives from jibá, an indigenous word that gives its name to a type of tree that is very abundant in the area; for others it comes from jíbaro, a term of Indian origin that means rustic and indomitable. However, the color of the facades of its houses, together with the presence of numerous crustaceans that wander from the forests to the neighboring sea, have earned Gibara the nickname “the White Village of Crabs.”

The city features numerous natural and urban attractions. Among the latter, its historic center was declared a National Monument in 2004 and is the most important colonial architectural complex in the province of Holguín. In addition, it has been proposed as a World Heritage Site. Likewise, Gibara was included in the Network of Heritage Cities of Cuba.

Among the must-see sites for visitors are: the Natural History Museum; the San Fulgencio church, which dates back to 1820; the neoclassical mansion that contains the Art Museum, where a large collection of works from the 19th and 20th centuries is housed; and the Municipal History Museum, home to cultural projects, talks and activities for the community.

Near Gibara are the Caletones and Los Bajos beaches, an attraction that adds to the welcome of very hospitable people of Gibara. Ecotourism is also encouraged there with excursions to the Tanques Azules on Caletones beach, boat rides along the Cacoyugüín River to its mouth in the bay and visits to the famous Cueva de los Panaderos.

And it is impossible not to mention the International Film Festival, a cultural milestone of the city. Created by film director Humberto Solás, its first edition took place in 2003, under the name of International No-Budget Film Festival. Today, the event has changed its name, but not its original values; and continues to promote the various aspects of this audiovisual art.

National or foreign tourists will find several accommodation facilities in Gibara, including heritage hotels from the Cubanacán Group, such as the Ordoño, Arsenita and Plaza Colón, as well as family homes and cozy hostels. Numerous private restaurants, the La Loja Bar and the Siglo XX Cultural Recreation Center contribute to gastronomic and leisure life in this city marked by the breeze from its boardwalk and the echo of film showings.

Havana Club Internacional: Innovation and tradition

In the recent edition of the Varadero Gourmet International Festival, the Havana Club International S.A. company showed the qualities of its most recent creations: the HC Smoky, HC Profundo and HC Spiced rums, which provide a unique sensory experience.

Havana Club Profundo is a Super Premium aged white rum, reminiscent of clear brandy; an exquisite and versatile drink that reveals different qualities in each sip. Its creator, the First Cuban Rum Master Juan Carlos González Delgado, achieves a perfect balance between intensity and smoothness, achieved by a unique mixture of aged rum bases with a higher proportion of spirits and a minimum of sugar.

For its part, Havana Club Cuban Spiced is a bold product inspired by the tropical nature of Cuba, which combines the famous Havana Club Añejo Especial rum with exotic flavors and warm spices. It balances the flavor of sweet vanilla and other aromatic spices with hints of juicy, ripe guava, toasted coconut and fresh pineapple, to add a new dimension and flavor profile to this complex and smooth rum.

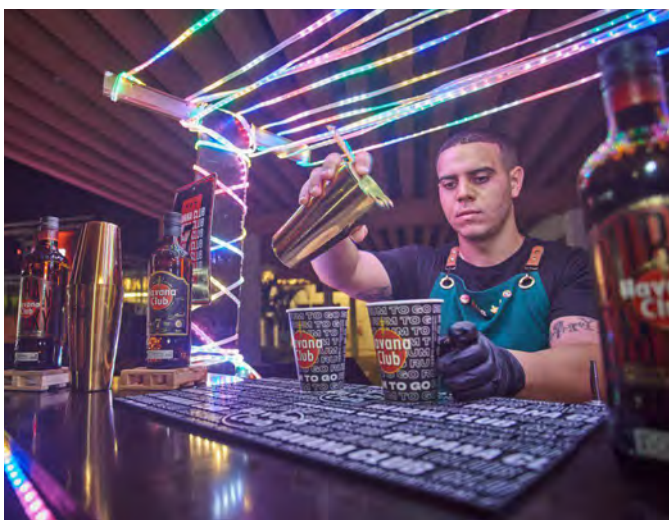

Additionally, Havana Club loves to tread new paths and break some rules. That's what HC Cuban Smoky is all about: a dark and powerful rum with smoky notes, which was born from blends aged in warehouses at the San José distillery. Its originality comes from the unique touch given to it by the barrels that previously contained smoked Scotch whiskey, thanks to the inventiveness of Cuban Rum Master Asbel Morales. This process gave it an elegant finish, highlighted by the subtle smoky note that allows the most demanding to define this rum as an exquisite daring.

Likewise, the company's experts continue to promote HC 7 Years rum, which continues to be the flagship product in the portfolio.

Havana Club International S.A is a joint venture created in November 1993 by the Cuban corporation Cuba Ron S.A and the French group Pernod Ricard. It is the world leader in high-quality rums and exports to more than 120 countries from Havana.
